Carpe Diem

New website archives every TV news program since 2009, and it's now online and searchable for free

Mark J. Perry | September 18, 2012, 11:11 am

TVNewser is reporting today that:

> The Internet Archive wants to do to TV news what it did to the Web: make its history available free to everyone, and searchable to boot.
>
> The non-profit has launched a new service (check it out here) which has every minute of just about every TV news program, dating back to 2009, all searchable by keyword. It will continue to add new material 24 hours after it airs, and also plans to go back and add material from before 2009.
>
> Among the networks archived so far: NBC, ABC, CBS, Fox, CNN, MSNBC, Fox News, Univision, Telemundo, PBS, and C-SPAN.

Tags: media, news media

©2012 American Enterprise Institute | 1150 17th Street, N.W. | Washington, D.C. 20036